First city housing project takes on its new residents

By Steve Marschke

People are beginning to move into the new West Capitol Courtyards project on West Capitol Ave. east of Harbor Blvd.

"As of December, we'll have about 33 families there," said Tom Kigar of the West Sacramento Housing Development Corporation (WSHDC). "By the end of the year, we'll have all 50 units occupied."

The WSHDC, a non-profit organization loosely affiliated with the city's redevelopment agency, sponsored the construction project, in part to meet the city's mandated goals to provide low-income housing. The facility is being managed by the John Stewart Co., which has an on-site manager.

"People are really pleased with the property, and are treating it with respect because they're so pleased to be there," said Kigar.

The complex includes one-bedroom flats above a row of retail spaces, and townhouses set back from the street.

Kigar said there is a waiting list for occupancy at the project, and his agency receives five to eight new applications every day.

These new applicants will also be put in line for the two-story, 40-unit townhouse project planned for the Holly Courts project in the Maple/Holly neighborhood.

"Those are expected to be finished by mid-1995," said Kigar.

For more information on the Holly Courts project, residents may call the Community Housing Opportunities Corporation (CHOC) at 757-4444.

Suspect picked up after robbery

By Steve Marschke

Police arrested a suspect minutes after a man robbed a convenience store on Riverbank Rd. (near Reed Ave. and I-80) Monday afternoon.

At about 1 p.m., a man with a "very large" knife forced a clerk at the AM-PM minimarket to lie down, and stole about $167 in cash.

Police put out a bulletin with the man's description.

About 20 minutes later, the broadcast appeared to pay off.

"One of our officers got the BOL ("be on the lookout") and stopped the subject at Harbor and Reed," said Lt. Ron Moore of the West Sacramento Police

Cooking up a Christmas

Volunteers for the West Sacramento Christmas Basket Project gear up for action, with empty boxes to be filled with Christmas dinner ingredients for local families in need.

"We've got 157 families signed up to receive boxes this year," said volunteer Helena Helmod. "They're going to get poultry, fruits, vegetables, rice, potatoes, bread, milk, soup, stuffing and hopefully some other stuff."

The project is coordinated among many individuals and groups in the community, including churches, service clubs, the Chamber of Commerce, the welfare department, the West Sacramento Resource Center and "any and all concerned citizens," said Helmold.

Families who sign up will be able to pick up their Christmas basket on Dec. 22.

For more information on the project, call 372-3360 or 371-1563, or write to P.O. Box 1236, West Sacramento, CA 95605. The Christmas Basket Project is a non-profit organization.

No illegal dumping found at plant

By Steve Marschke

County officials, working with the West Sacramento Public Works Department, found no buried drums of soil or vehicle batteries in a South River Rd. search begun in October.

In a letter to Public Works Director Larry Gossett, a county official said that the search was conducted in response to "a complaint we received which alleged that numerous soil drums and 12 volt batteries were buried in that location," near the city sewage treatment plant.

One of several whistleblowers at the plant had apparently made the allegation.

Measurements from a magnetometer and ground radar were among the means used to look for the buried items. Several plant employees had said they had seen other public works employees illegally disposing of the items.

The search "did not reveal any evidence of buried drums and batteries," said Craig Walker of the county hazardous materials division. Walker pronounced the case "closed."

Landeros to take job in south state

Yolo County's top county staffer will take over as Ventura's new city manager effective Jan. 17.

Donna Landeros, 46, has been the Yolo County Administrator since 1989. In recent years, she has had to preside over county budget cuts which have led to layoffs and a hospital closure within the county. Her new post in the 95,000-person town of Ventura (north of Los Angeles on the coast) will mean a $19,000 pay raise from her current salary of about $86,000.

Landeros told a reporter this week that she would take the Ventura position in order to find a new challenge and a change of scenery.

Mike McGowan, chairman of the Yolo County Board of Supervisors, said he will recommend that Assistant County Administrator Tom Landeros serve as interim administrator until the board chooses a new permanent one.

City council to deal with new budget problems

■ More cuts on the horizon as West Sacramento faces yet another year of revenue problems

By Steve Marschke

The West Sacramento City Council will meet Saturday morning in special session to discuss a 1994-95 budget that "does not look good," according to councilman Greg Potnick.

Potnick said that coming years are likely to bring more budget cuts to the city's general fund, which primarily funds the city's police, fire and parks services. Some of this will be fuelled by more legislation from the state, which over the past few years has re-directed tax revenues away from cities and counties in an effort to help meet the state's budget problems. The economic recession has also caused local government a great deal of trouble, by reducing revenues from sales taxes and other money-generators.

"Over the past four years, actions taken by the state have impacted West Sacramento by about $1.3 million per year -- roughly 10 percent of the city's general fund," said Potnick, quoting from a report by city finance director Leigh Keicher.

A new assembly bill will likely cost West Sacramento nearly $200,000 annually, he added. This change will be retroactive, and will require an additional $98,000 pay-out by the city over the next two years to make up for not having handed over the money in the 1993-94 fiscal year.

Among the other recent state legislature actions which have impacted West Sacramento:

- A new law passed in time for the 1991-92 fiscal year allowed counties to begin charging fees for booking city prisoners into jail. This has cost West Sacramento about $350,000 per year.
- A similar new county fee for administering property taxes costs the city about $120,000 per year.
- A 1992-93 property tax shift, designed to use revenues from the cities to finance schools, allowing the state to save a like amount, costs about $500,000 per year to West Sacramento.

West Sacramento has attempted to meet the new challenges without clipping the budgets of its fire and police departments. The parks and community services department has suffered some budget cuts in recent years, and "shuffling" of some budget items to the city's redevelopment agency has helped absorb other costs.

Saturday's meeting will be at 9:00 a.m. in the City Council Chambers, 2101 Stone Blvd.

North city league finds a new baseball diamond

By Steve Marschke

The 13-to-15-year old players from the Washington Little League may have found a place to play ball next season.

City and school district officials in West Sacramento have tentatively agreed to let the "senior league" players use a new diamond being constructed for them at Golden State Middle School. Other fields in town were either already booked solid, or too small for the teenagers.

"We've finally got a location at Golden State Middle School," said Mike Hyett, the league president. "They're tearing down one diamond to put up another diamond."

Hyett added that he had heard "through the grapevine" that the construction will require about $9,000 (no one has yet asked the league to foot the bill), and that he didn't know why one diamond at the school would have to be replaced to make way for the new one.

The players previously played as guests of the G.W. Williams company, which owned the league's "traditional" parcel on Sacramento Avenue near Riverbend Market. But for reasons the company has not disclosed, it discontinued that arrangment this year and removed the old ballfield, backstop and scoreboard.

The league hopes to begin practice in February, and to start team play in April, said Hyett.

In another change for young local baseballers, the lines between the two West Sacramento baseball leagues have been redrawn.

Beginning this season, anyone living north of West Capitol Ave. will fall into Washington Little League's part of town, and anyone living south will remain in West Sacramento Little League territory.

The old boundary was Sacramento Ave. -- a cutoff line which left Washington Little League with only one-third of the city's population to draw from.

Students and teacher honored at River City High School

By Karri Smith
Commissioner of Campus Affairs,
River City High School

Rene Zwine is Raider of the Month for November. She is an 18-year-old mighty senior at River City. But Rene is no ordinary student. She commutes to West Sacramento from Woodland for our special education program. Rene's involved in Special Olympics. This month, she is playing floor hockey, and next month it's basketball Rene enjoys swimming in the summer.

When I asked what she likes most about River City, Rene answered, "I like River City because it's nice here. I have lots of friends, and I like to go to the football games." Rene is excited to graduate because when school's out, she is going to Hawaii.

Matt Flint is also Raider of the Month for November. Matt is a mighty senior, 18 years old, and an active football player, #55. He has played football for his four years at River City. Matt is the senior class treasurer and has been in leadership for the past two years. Matt's goal is to be a fire fighter, but for now he has been recruited for the Navy. Matt likes collecting baseball cards and working on his truck. When I asked him what stands out about River City, Matt replied, "I'll always remember the teachers that helped me through the years, but I'll always remember football the most! It's been a fun four years."

Ron Pina is River City High School's staff of the month for November. He is a government and economics teacher. Pina first started working in the Washington Unified School Dis-

In last week's issue, a back page headline contained an incorrect date for the West Sacramento City Council's special meeting to discuss the budget. That date, which was reported correctly in the article itself, 9 a.m. this Saturday, Dec. 3.

An article on the karate program offered by the city parks department gave the wrong price for the program. The correct cost is $15 per month. For more information, call 373-5860.

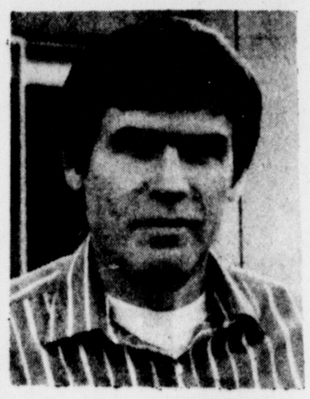
The myth of Sisyphus: a great lesson in life

My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

For those of you who recall your ancient Greek mythology, you will remember that there was once a place called Mount Olympus where all the great gods lived. According to the Greek poets, the king of the gods was Zeus (or Jupiter) and his queen was a lady named Hera (or Juno)--who also happened to be his sister--which was apparently permitted back then. Some of the other gods who had the right to hang out on the mountain top were Apollo (the sun god), Venus (who was in charge of love and beauty), Neptune (the ocean), Mars (war), and Mercury (messages). Among the subordinate deities were Ceres (agriculture), Minerva (wisdom), Vesta (home life), Iris (rainbows), Hebe (the goddess of youth), Eileithyia (who helped women in childbirth), Hypnos (sleep), and Vulcan (blacksmiths--and the only one who had a death grip to go along with his thunderbolt).

Anyway, there was once a great king of Corinth who went by the extremely hard to pronounce name of Sisyphus. He was said to be the most intelligent and tricky of men, and his schemes even puzzled the ancient gods. He boldly stole their secrets, absolutely refused to be panicked by their admonitions, and showed an alarming disrespect for their many powers. His scorn of the gods, his lack of fear of death, and his passion for life made him--as it has made other like-minded men and women down through the ages--a very dangerous individual indeed.

Sisyphus, however, finally got in a little over his head when he tried to stop Zeus from kidnaping a woman he was celestially interested in, and Zeus immediately sent Death to punish him. But being the ingenious guy he was, Sisyphus somehow tricked Death and tied him up with chains--no easy feat. Not only did this greatly benefit Sisyphus, but it was said that no other man died while Death was bound.

Pluto (the god of the Lower World) got wind of this through Mercury (who was always passing gossip back and forth) and he sent Mars (the god of war) to free Death and give him complete power over Sisyphus. As you might suspect, it wasn't long before Sisyphus found himself good and dead and living (that's probably the wrong word) in the Lower World. Sisyphus immediately--and quite bitterly--complained about all of this to Pluto--especially that his wife had not performed the proper burial ceremonies--and demanded that he be allowed to return to the living. Pluto--who was one of the really early chauvinists--agreed that Sisyphus' wife needed to be chastised and foolishly gave in and let him go. But as one might expect, once Sisyphus began enjoying the warmth of the sun and the beauty of the sea again, he absolutely refused to return to the world of darkness.

Years later--with a decree from the gods in his hand--Mercury was sent to fetch Sisyphus back to Hades--where everyone but Sisyphus agreed he belonged. Using force, Mercury successfully managed to get Sisyphus back underground, where Pluto--who was extremely ticked off by this point--condemned Sisyphus to ceaselessly roll a huge stone to the top of a high hill, where the stone would inevitably run into the full force of gravity and fall back of its own weight--the idea being that there is no greater punishment than endless, futile labor.

Regardless of how poorly I recall my Greek mythology, it seems to me that there is much to be learned from this wonderful old myth. To begin with, I'm reminded to pick my tasks on this earth very carefully, because even while we're playing by all the rules and raking in the monthly paychecks, there's always the nagging possibility that we might just be spending most of our lives accomplishing nothing; secondly, that although there is always a price to pay for gleefully jerking the gods around, "there is no fate that cannot be surmounted by scorn"; and finally, that regardless of the joys and passions of this life, one must always return to his or her burdens.

When I think of Sisyphus, I also think of all the neat memories that must have filled his mind as he made his way back down the hill. As Camus said, "At that subtle moment when man glances backward over his life--Sisyphus returning toward his rock--in that slight pivoting he contemplates the series of unrelated actions which becomes his fate, created by him, combined under his memory's eye and sealed by his death."

Sisyphus understood that fate is actually a human matter, which must be settled among men, and not gods. He also knew that life belongs to those willing to take a few chances--and he even dared to tie up Death and ask for a furlough from hell.

Maybe if more of us could find it in ourselves to follow his example from time to time--even knowing that the rock may await us--at least our decent back down the hill will take place in joy.

Who would think that holiday time is a dangerous time? The West Sacramento Fire Department for one. This time of year brings special dangers of household fires, but they can be avoided very easily. Here are some tips for a safe holiday season.

Make sure your smoke detector is connected and working. It seems obvious, but it's very important. With all the cooking going on in the kitchen, a smokey turkey or the heat from a half-dozen pots on the stove can set off the alarm, and a lot of people respond by disconnecting the alarm — and then they forget to reconnect it when the cooking frenzy is over.

Equip your home with fire extinguishers. A portable fire extinguisher can put out a small fire or contain it until the firefighters arrive. Keep a multipurpose fire extinguisher in the kitchen, in the garage, and in the workshop. They should be stored in plain view and away from potential fire hazards such as heating appliances. Remember that portable fire extinguishers are not designed to fight a large or spreading fire.

Use your fireplace safely. A fire in the fireplace can warm up a chilly room and add holiday cheer to your evening, but make sure you are not endangering your home and your family.

•Use a fireplace screen and keep it closed.

•Don't use your fireplace as an incinerator. You may be tempted to toss wrapping paper, holiday napkins, decorations, and so forth into your roaring fire. Don't do it! Fireplaces are not designed to handle this material, and tiny bits of burning paper can surge through the chimney and spark a fire on your roof. Take your waste paper to the trash can or the recycling bin. The same goes for any branches or leaves that are serving as decorations.

•Dispose of ashes safely. You can leave the ashes in the fireplace, but when you decide to clean out the ashes, put them in a metal bucket and then soak them in water. Don't put ashes in a paper bag. Ashes that seem cool often contain hot coals that will start a fire.

•Buy only seasoned wood — that is, wood that has been "cured" at least one year. Ask the seller before you buy, and check to see that the wood isn't green or coated with fresh sap. When burning recently cut wood, tar and residue can build up in the chimney, which later can melt and start a fire inside the chimney.

•Have your chimney cleaned by a professional, preferably once a year. Check the yellow pages for a bonded professional.

Decorate your tree and your home with safety as well as beauty in mind. Use only freshly cut trees, and water your tree everyday to keep it from drying out. If you can buy an artificial tree, choose a flame-resistant tree that is approved by a testing laboratory. Set up your tree away from heat sources, make sure the tree is securely in its stand. Place the tree where it will not block exits or escape routes. Don't put candles on, or near, your Christmas tree, and don't use paper streamers or ornaments. Use outdoor lights outdoors, and indoor lights indoors. Always unplug all lights and extinguish any candles before you leave the house or go to bed. Be careful not to overload your electrical circuits with too many plugs in a wall socket. Above all, do not override your circuit breaker, or tamper with fuses; these are designed to prevent electrical overloads.

Use heaters carefully. Keep paper, wood, drapes, blankets and flammable liquids at least five feet away from any heater. Avoid kerosene heaters completely. If you have an electric heater, make sure it has been approved by Underwriters' Lab (UL) — look for the UL label. One safety feature UL requires is that the heater automatically shut off if it tips over. Do not place a portable heater where children might play. Never use heaters to dry clothes or shoes.

Educate your family. Now is a good time to review safety procedures with your family, especially children. Keep matches and cigarette lighters away from children and instruct them never to play with them. Develop and practice fire escape plans and procedures. Make sure everyone knows how to call 911 and give your address. Post your address right next to the phone in case a guest has to make the emergency call.

Have a safe and happy holiday season!

If you have any questions about fire safety or emergency procedures, please call the Fire Department, 373-5840. And while you're thinking about it, why not check your smoke detector right now!

Nine Raider football players named to all-league first and second teams

By Chuck Robinson

The River City High School 1994 varsity football team placed 6 players on the first all league team and 4 players on the all league second team.

On the first offensive team was Paul Barber at fullback, who carried 135 times for 941 yards, a 7.0 average and scored 14 touchdowns; Nick Correa, offensive tackle, who made 6 tackles and 7 assists; Joe Arch, offensive guard, who had 1 tackle, 3 assists and 1 quarterback sack. On the offensive line the guard and tackle never get much recognition but are a big force on the line, holding the defense and opening the holes for the running backs.

On defense was Angel Cardenas, defensive back, with 33 tackles, 14 assists, 5 knock down passes; Joe Flores, defensive tackle, who led the team with 58 tackles, 37 assists, 3 knock down passes, 2 fumble recoveries, 2 quarterback sacks and 168 points; Jeremy Deaton, defensive end, with 36 tackles, 17 assists, 1 knock down pass, 3 fumble recoveries, 5 quarterback sacks and 1 pass rush for 115 points.

Second All League Team

On the second team was Paul Barber, on defense as middle line backer, with 48 tackles, 25 assists, 1 pass interception, 1 quarterback sack and 127 points; Terry Warford, defensive tackle, with 50 tackles, 25 assists, 3 fumble recoveries, 8 quarterback sacks, 2 pass rushes, and second highest points, 160; Duke Serowchack (not pictured), tight end, with 16 tackles, 9 assists, 3 knock down passes, 1 fumble recovery, and also caught 12 passes for 343 yards and 4 touchdowns; and Justin Hanks, quarterback, who set 3 school records this year.

Terry Warford, Paul Barber and Justin Hanks.

Hanks threw 98 passes, bypassing the old record of 88. Hanks completed 38, for a new school record of completions. The old yards passing were 717 yards, held by Danny Carter. Hanks set a new record of 758 yards passing.

Congratulations to all of these players who had a great football year for 1994.

The Sports Insider

By Richard Novoa

The 49ers (10-2) clinched their third consecutive NFC West title and 11th division crown in 14 years.

The 49ers posted a 35-14 victory over the Saints on Monday night. Steve Young was brilliant again, throwing four touchdown passes and completing 24 of 30 passes for 281 yards.

The Niners have four remaining games -- against Atlanta on Sunday, then San Diego (9-3), Denver (6-6) and Minnesota (7-5). The 49ers maintain their tie-breaker edge over Dallas (10-2) in the race for home-field advantage throughout the NFC playoffs.

Dallas beat Green Bay on Thanksgiving, 42-31, as third string QB Jason Garrett pulled off the best game of his short pro career. Dallas's last four games are against Philadelphia (7-5), Cleveland (9-3), New Orleans (4-8) and the N.Y. Giants (5-7).

The Los Angeles Raiders (6-6) suffered a big blow to their playoff hopes. Jeff Hostetler was knocked out of the game Sunday by the Pittsburgh defense, as the Steelers won 21-3 and improved their record to 9-3. The Steelers defense is awesome, and if they get their offense to score some more touchdowns, they will win the AFC title.

The AFC division will be very interesting in the final weeks of the season, because Miami leads the East by two games, as does San Diego in the West, but Cleveland and Pittsburgh are tied in the Central Division. That leaves Buffalo, New York, New England, Los Angeles and the Denver Broncos (who lost their first four games) all tied at 6-6 with four games remaining.

The AFC playoff picture won't be set until the final week of the season, with these teams fighting for the last playoff spot.

The Sacramento Kings (5-5) are enjoying the best start to a season since 1984. The Kings travel this week to the East Coast to play Miami, Orlando, New Jersey and Philadelphia. Next home game is Tuesday, Dec. 6, against Milwaukee, led by the "Big Dog," Glen Robinson.

See ya next week!!

News-Ledger Editorial

'Cheaper!' store deserves a little more discussion

The West Sacramento City Council will almost certainly hear an appeal on the planning commission's approval of a new "Cheaper!" store in West Sacramento, and that is a good thing.

This is true partly because there are some unanswered questions on the traffic study done for the store (yes, it would have been better for the planning commission to have explored this issue in more depth).

But it is mostly true as a matter of policy. Whenever a truly controversial project comes along, and the citizens of West Sacramento are agitated, as many Southport residents now are, it is a good idea for the city council to get involved. The five-person council is where the buck stops; it is the body most accountable to the public; and its members are generally more experienced with the complexity of planning issues.

So it will be a good thing for the council to give the "Cheaper!" issue a public airing.

One of the questions likely to be posed will be that raised by Mayor Cindy Tuttle last week:

By drawing customers away from Raley's and Safeway, won't the store stand a chance of increasing the number of people using the Jefferson bridge at peak hours? When commuters get off the freeway to go to their homes in Southport on week nights, presumably some of them now detour for the supermarkets to do their shopping while others head straight for the bridge. This may naturally "cushion" the effects of the peak hour traffic.

But, with the availability of a mid-sized market in Southport, won't more of them head right for the Jefferson bridge at the same time? Was the peak hour impact of the proposed "Cheaper!" store addressed in the city traffic report?

Another source of controversy is the projected market area for the store.

It's assumed by the report that the store will draw 60 percent of its customers from the local neighborhood, and 40 percent from across the barge canal (and therefore across the bridge). By saving Southport residents a trip across the bridge to the supermarkets, and by drawing only 40 percent of its customers from north of the barge canal, the net result will be a one percent reduction in the number of trips across the barge canal. Where, precisely, does this 60-40 assumption come from?

The proposed store, at 8,000 square feet, is neither a Circle K or a Raley's, but somewhere in between. And it is an aggressive advertiser (see the insert in this issue of the News-Ledger, for example). It will draw people from a wider area than a typical convenience store, but a smaller area than a supermarket.

Did the traffic study treat it this way?

On the other hand, the proposed "Cheaper!" store has taken some "Cheap!" shots. The new store will be bigger and better than, for example, the "Cheaper!" store at Poplar and West Capitol or the convenience markets elsewhere in town. Direct comparisons are not quite fair.

Perhaps the upcoming city council hearing will provide more answers than questions, and lead to a better consensus than the one that now exists.

Letters to the Editor

We need 'Cheaper!'

A bouquet of gratitude to the Planning Commission for approving the permit for the Cheaper Store chain to build a medium size market in Southport. We may continue to shop in larger stores on a weekly basis but it would be great to have a neighborhood store to purchase items left off the grocery list or sudden snack cravings.

Every time I have to send one of the older kids on a bike to pick up a few items, it means a trip down Linden Road into town. I silently debate whether it is really worth the risk of braving the Linden Road traffic and bridge crossing on a bike. I have to try to anticipate the traffic flow and remaining daylight. If it is between 4:00 and 6:00 p.m., I usually decide to skip the trip and make do with what we have. Any time of the day, I say a prayer and hold my breath until they are safely home again.

Therefore, I was unhappy to read that the Southport Homeowners Association was going to appeal the decision. Maybe a compromise would be to choose a classier name for the store. Tags like Raley's or Safeway are not exactly poetry, but Cheaper does sound...for want of a better word...cheap (or to quote my teenage daughter, "sorry"). Couldn't they put Southport in big letters and Cheaper in smaller letters on the store sign. Or even better, the 15th Street Market used to be called Happy Market. Another Happy Market would make me...for want of a better word...happy.

Also, to prove once again that beauty is in the eye of the beholder and the appreciation of art is subjective, my son was disappointed to hear there wouldn't be a great big horse standing on the roof.

History question

This morning while I was unavailable a woman telephoned from West Sacramento. She told my wife that she had inquired at the News-Ledger for information about the News-Ledger between 1922 and 1928 (?). Of course, that was long before the News-Ledger was ever published. She stated to my wife that she had been informed by someone in your office to contact me as a good source of such information. Unfortunately, my wife did not tell her to telephone me later as it subsequently occurred to me I have an answer. If you do not I suggest that you publish this letter as a "Letter to the Editor" to thus hopefully inform her. It occurs to me that she is seeking the information on behalf of the newly-formed West Sacramento Historical Society. In which case your paper will either way be assisting that organization.

From living in Bryte from 1914 through 1971, I would have been 9 through 14 years of age between 1922 and 1928. I don't recall anything from those years but it occurs to me a single page was occasionally published in the News-Ledger a special feature header titled "Pages from the Past," which I recall featured social and general news items about local people, firms, events, etc., etc., 60 years prior. I'm sure these years were featured in the News-Ledger through about 1988 or 1989. As a bit of side information I believe Ray Williams of Broderick (?) was publisher of the Independent until Badgely Brothers of Sacramento took it over in about 1949 or 1950 with Kirt McBride of Sacramento as editor. Not too long before Kirt died he told me in discussing Julius Feher's "Pages from the Past" feature that some of the years of Independent back editions had been destroyed likely at the time of the Badgely takeover. However, it occurs to me alternatively that Julis told me of this because he had been unable to get pages for some from the California State Library in Sacramento. It occurs to me that some of them may be in my storage files (about 70 transfer cases full covering the past 50 years or so which would be a heck of a job searching through. Yuk!).

The Sacramento River registered 16 feet 11 inches U. S. gauge at the S. P. bridge yesterday.

A special meeting of the Volunteer Firemen of Washington has been called for next Tuesday evening in the Town Hall to discuss important subjects. During several months past the firemen have been very dilatory in attending meetings, only a quorum being present and all the weight being thrown on a few. These are becoming tired of doing all the work and ask the others to help out. There is great need for the department in Washington because if it should be dissolved an immediate raise of insurance rates within the town would go into effect. The Volunteer Firemen have done splendid work in the past, but the officers want to meet with the members on this occasion to say something special in relation to the department. It must be acknowledged that during several months of last year the drain on the young men of the town to fill the ranks of Uncle Sam was very great, but now that several have already returned, the others m st take a hand to fill the places of the absentees for a time. Every member who signed the roll last December is asked to be present next Tuesday evening.

A telegram has been received by Judge Barry from his son Dave that the latter arrived in New York last Monday from France. No mention was made about how soon he expects to leave Camp Merritt for California.

Elmer Moffett is at home with an honorable dischage from the navy, where he spent a year in active service and where he underwent the experience of being torpedoed by the Germans. He escaped without mishap except that he suffered a severe burn on one hand.

Local fishermen are about to return to work now that Market Commisioner Weinstock's arbitrary powers have been clipped by the Scott bill. Fishing has been poor for some who have been at work with only light catches of bass and shad. Practically no salmon has been arriving at the local landings, but during the coming week the men feel that there will be a chance for them to make a living.

Since Johnny Soule retired from the saloon business he has been extremely busy around his home in cleaning off the great growth of alfalfa around the premises. It is surprising, too, how much improvement has been added to his place by the work. Other property owners in the neighborhood are following suit, with the result that the locality presents a very good appearance.

Lieutenant Ward Pagnello arrived at his home to-day from Camp Kearny. It was too late to secure an interview with him before the Independent went to press.

Henry Sousa is expected home from the Presidio in a few days where he was discharged from the army last Saturday. He is visiting San Francisco friends and relatives for a few days, after which he will spend several days in Washington, then to Fresno to see his parents. He will make his future home here.

Tony Sanchez has recovered his auto through help of the Sacramento police force. It was stolen several nights ago while he and his family were attending a movie show. It was found near 10th and R streets, undamaged.

Mrs. A. Shoemaker went to Berkeley last Wednesday to visit friends. She will spend a month between Berkeley and San Francisco.

Mrs. C. Richeson is at home from Oakland where she spent two weeks with her daughter.

Miss Charlotte Merkley as at her home north of town for the Easter vacation. She will return to the Dominican Convent in San Rafael next Tuesday.

Last Monday G. Forline was before Judge Barry on a charge of disturbing the peace of a gang of gypsies who were camped near the M-street bridge. He had been imbibing grape juice and become hilarious. He was cautioned to avoid the bug juice and was allowed to go.

Chas. Hill had wandered across the bridge last Tuesday with a lady friend and proceeded to make things lively around Rocky Point. He became saucy when cautioned by Constable Buckingham and was arrested. He was sentenced to 30 days, but sentence was suspended on promise he would leave town.

GAS SERVICE MAY BE EXTENDED TO RESIDENTS OF WASHINGTON PROVIDED THAT DEMAND WARRANTS

ELECTRIC LIGHT RATE HAS ALREADY BEEN REDUCED; NEW SCHEDULE TO BE EFFECTIVE ON OR AFTER NEXT READING OF METERS.

A committee of five ladies was appointed last Tuesday evening by the Washington Improvement Club to canvass the property owners and tenants of the town, seeking to secure the signatures of families who would be willing to use gas, if the mains of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company should be extended across the river from Sacramento.

The committee consists of Mrs. McNevin, Mrs. Cameron, Mrs. Curry, Mrs. Wm. Wilson and Mrs. Parkinson.

This committee will organize districts in the community, so that every household will be canvassed for signatures to the Pacific Gas and Electric Company asking the service.

This action was taken following a report by Captain Baldwin of the company to the effect that there was no doubt whatever about the company desiring to get new customers and if those customers were sufficiently plentiful, the cost of material, even though high at this moment, would not be considered.

Captain Baldwin's explanation was so explicit and so reasonable that his auditors in the club thanked him sincerely for his presence at the meeting. He also volunteered to get up a form of petition that would be signed to prove that the people of Washington were desirous of having a gas supply in the town.

It was pointed out during the discussion on this question that many people refused to live in Washington, no matter how neat the homes might be and how convenient the quarters might be, if gas for cooking during the summer months was not available.

This was illustrated forcibly by the example shown at the Hart home at Second and Mary streets, which is now for rent and which is one of the most thoroughly equipped homes in the community.

Intending renters from Sacramento, absolutely satisfied with everything in the Hart home, refused to rent the property furnished at $25 per month because gas is not available for cooking.

Houses in Washington, now renting for $15 per month are just as representative and just as convenient, with the exception of gas, as houses in Sacramento that demand a rental of $25 and $30 per month.

With the exception of coal oil and gasoline stoves, the only method of cooking during the summer months is with wood and this has many disadvantages during hot weather.

It is for these reasons that the ladies of the club decided to canvass the property owners, as well as the renters, in an effort to show that it would warrant the Pacific Gas and Electric Company to extend its mains across the river.

Concerning the lighting question, Captain Baldwin advised that the rate in Washington for juice for home lighting purposes, after the next reading would be 8c per kilowat hour. This is a reduction from 10c which prevailed under the West Sacramento Electric.

Captain Baldwin said that it is only in large centers of population like Oakland, San Jose, Sacramento and Chico a lower rate prevails.

The schedule of rates explained by Captain Baldwin in effect from this date on is:

Eight cents per kilowat hour for the first thirty hours; 7c per kilowat hours for more than 30 and less than 100 hours; 6c per kilowat hour for more than 100 kilowat hours.

The commercial light rating is as follows:

Six cents for the first 150 kilowat hours; 5c for the next 300 kilowat hours; 4c for the next 600 kilowat hours; 3c for over 1050 kilowat hours.

This latter rate applies also for motors up to and including five horse power.

As in comparison with the rate for gas for cooking purposes, electric juice compares as $1.80 is to $1.

Captain Baldwin further explained that about two years ago when a canvass was made of Washington by his men to secure signatures for gas consumption only about one-third of the home owners signified their willingness to have gas installed for cooking purposes.

It was decided by the club that a delegate would not be sent to the meeting of the Railroad Commissioners that will be held in San Francisco on May 6th to consider the question of reducing the lighting rate in Washington.

VICTORY BOND DRIVE WILL OPEN IN WOODLAND SATURDAY

The Independent is in receipt of the following letter from C. W. Bush, Yolo County Director of the Victory Bond campaign, which is self-explanatory:

Woodland, April 14, 1919.

Gentlemen:

Will you kindly make announcement in your paper this week that the Victory Bond Campaign will open in this city with a mass meeting on Saturday evening next at 8 o'clock? And also please announce that the returned soldiers are asked to be present in uniform.

It is the hope that a battalion can be formed on their arrival so that they can attend the meeting in a body.

This will undoubtedly arouse the patriotism of the people, and will stimulate them to come to the support of the government.

We hope to have an outside speaker of ability to present the needs of the government.

Yours sincerely,
C. W. BUSH,
County Director.

It's your paper. Deal with those who advertise in it.

CESSPOOLS AND CAMPERS MENACE COMMUNITY HEALTH

Serious complaint was lodged last Tuesday evening by some members of the Washington Improvement Club against the condition of several cesspools in the town that are overflowing at this time.

It appears that the great amount of seepage water which fills the ground prevents household overflow from seeping into the ground around the cesspool.

Nearly all cesspools are filled with water because of the high stage of the river and when the overflow from lavatories, bathrooms and sinks is permitted to flow into the cesspools, the natural consequence is that there is an overflow which is offensive.

Many property owners are very careful at this time of the year about permitting waste water to flow into cesspools. They try to convey it to the surface of the ground where it easily seeps below the surface.

This is acknowledged the only cure for overflowing cesspools because the solids from households are not sufficient to fill any ordinary cesspool in a period of five or six years.

There is danger of scarlet fever and even typhoid fever in this condition and the club is anxious to avoid any epidemic. The secretary was instructed to ask the Health Officer to take remedial steps where possible.

Another menace to community health is that coming from the vacant land near the Sacramento-Northern embankment at the end of the M-street bridge.

At this point last Tuesday forenoon, there were not less than fifteen camping outfits, some of them consisting of three and four persons. In that neighborhood there is no toilet and there is no water supply except from the river.

The water may be pure enough and may not occasion sickness but there is danger in the fact that no lavatory is available for nearly fifty people.

The Independent has inveighed against this condition for several years and only at times has it been successful in reducing the number of trespassers.

Two police officers of Seattle are under arrest for stealing 3000 quarts of liquor from the U. S. Appraiser in that city.

REPAIRS WILL BE MADE SOON TO RIVERBANK ROAD

The road leading west from Washington to Riverbank, improved with oiled macadam several years ago, is now in such condition that it is practically dangerous for any one driving an auto to move faster than five miles an hour, is about to be repaired.

Supervisor Leinberger advised The Independent last Wednesday that right after July 1st when funds are available this road will be scarified, rolled and additional macadam placed to fill the uneven places.

During the time this road was in course of construction, every precaution was taken to make it one of the model roads of the county, but since that time it has been ascer-

The meeting will be an opportunity to celebrate the publication of the ZHRS book on the history of this California town founded in 1875. No one was injured in the holdup. Moore declined to release the amount of money taken.

trict in 1978, the first year of River City High. That year he and Ms. Delarosa started multiculture club. Pina also started the soccer program and coached for ten years. He is now the senior class advisor and is a mentor teacher.

When asked about his likes and dislikes at River City, he answered, "I like the students because they are respectful. The staff is the best group of people I have ever worked with. My dislikes would have to be that I wish all the rooms were wired with alarms because my room got broken into a while ago, and a few Raider Cards were stolen."

When asked how he feels about this year's senior class compared to previous years, Pina replied, "This is one of the most positive active group of seniors I've ever worked with."

Away from school, Mr. Pina lives a life with his wife and two kids, a daughter who is a sophomore at U.C. Davis and a son, a ninth grader at Emerson Jr. High in Davis. Pina has been a resident of Davis since 1972. Pina's favorite pastime is cycling. He is an avid cyclist between the months of March and November. But in the winter, he works out to keep in shape for cycling. Pina is also an elder in his church, Grace Valley Christian Center, and an advisor in music there. Congratulations, Mr. Pina.

Thanksgiving dinner served for local seniors

From Somerset Nursing Center

Somerset Nursing Home hosted a Thanksgiving Dinner for the residents and their families on Sunday, November 20. All families or responsible persons for residents were invited. Our dietary department served 90 residents and their families turkey or ham dinners in two different rooms with lovely Thanksgiving decorations.

This is the fourth annual event of this kind Somerset has hosted. Some of our residents and families have been to all four and are asking in September or October when the Thanksgiving dinner is going to be. We had several new residents and their families who couldn't believe how the dining room and activity rooms were transformed into a lovely restaurant like setting, with such a banquet that our dietary department served.

Many thanks to many people who helped with such a wonderful event; but special thanks to the Moose Lodge for their equipment and many of them coming to serve as waiters and waitresses!

said I want an education so I can be productive in whatever I choose. I just wonder if he might have any questions about their background if he knew who they were? I just wonder if his reaction would be the same as if Louis Farrakan or the late Malcom X's children said they wanted the same thing to be productive in their choice of activities.

I think Mr. McFarren is being wagged by the National Education Association (N.E.A.). They fought Proposition 187 tooth and nail while screaming our classrooms are overcrowded and we want more money. When are you teachers who came out of the 60's going to realize that breaking the law is wrong? I realize it is not the fault of the children, it is the fault of the parents, who should have some responsibility of educating their offsprings. There are mnay classrooms overcrowded with children of illegal aliens, commonly known as undocumented immigrants. Whatever the case may be, the majority of the people have spoken that they are tired of paying the price for lawbreakers. Mr. McFarren, as bad as you feel, you just may have to face the fact that at some point you may have to abide by the law. Good luck. The fifth grade is a very crucial point in a child's life. You should be teaching it is wrong for anyone to break the law, even parents. There is a process called registration for screening so you should not have to turn anyone into the authorities. Good grief. There is nothing in Prop. 187 saying you are required to turn anyone into the I.N.S. or anyone else.
